

CONTRIBUTORS

MAGDALENA ABRAHAM-DIEFENBACH, PhD, studied Philosophy and Sociology at the Nicolaus Copernicus University as well as German Studies at Teachers' College in Toruń and Katowice in Poland. She is a research fellow at the Faculty of Social and Cultural Sciences, the Chair of Heritage Studies at European University Viadrina Frankfurt (Oder) and also a chairwoman of the board of the Institute for Applied History – Society and Science in Dialogue (Institut für angewandte Geschichte – Gesellschaft und Wissenschaft im Dialog e.V.). She deals with questions of regional identity of the Polish western lands, Jewish traces in Kashubia and western Poland and the history of cinema on the Polish-German border.

ELEONORA BERGMAN, PhD, is a retired researcher of the Emanuel Ringelblum Jewish Historical Institute in Warsaw who coordinates and coedits materials of the Ringelblum Archive in Polish and English. Thus, she continues to be involved in the preservation of Jewish heritage. Her best known monographs are: Nurt mauretański w architekturze synagog Europy Środkowo-Wschodniej w XIX i na początku XX wieku (Warszawa: Neriton, 2004) and 'Nie masz bóżnicy powszechnej': Synagogi i domy modlitwy w Warszawie od końca XVIII do początku XXI wieku (Warszawa: Wydawnictwo DiG, 2007). In 2012, she was awarded the National Order of the Legion of Honor, and in 2018 she received the Prize of the City of Warsaw.

MICHAŁ BRANDL, PhD, is an Associate Professor at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences, the Chair of Jewish and Holocaust Studies at the University of Zagreb. Her research interests include Jewish history in Croatia in the twentieth century, especially in the immediate postwar period, and Jewish heritage. She is currently the chief research consultant for the World Jewish Restitution Organization (WJRO) and for the Claims Conference in a project on the restitution of movable Jewish property in Croatia, as well as the national coordinator for the Croatian National Node in European Holocaust Research Infrastructure (EHRI) and a member of the Croatian delegation of the International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance (IHRA). For her book Appropriation of Jewish property in Croatia: Zagreb as a case study (Zagreb: Leykam international, 2022) she received the annual National Award for Science in the field of Humanities for 2022.

ANDREA CORSALE, PhD, is an Associate Professor of Geography at the University of Cagliari, Italy. His research interests include population geography, international migrations and diasporas, transnationalism, ethnic minorities, cultural and rural tourism, Jewish heritage tourism as well as sustainable local development, with a focus on Central and Eastern Europe, especially Poland, Romania, Ukraine, and on the Mediterranean region, particularly Italy. He published in several volumes and journals covering this field, including the International Journal of Religious Tourism and Pilgrimage, The Geographical Journal and Current Issues in Tourism.

JÚLIA CSEJDY, PhD, a historian and an art historian, is a research fellow at the Hungarian Museum of Architecture and Monument Protection Documentation Center. She specializes in the building survey of Hungarian architectonical heritage from the eighteenth to the twentieth centuries. Her main interest is monument topographical research focusing on the heritage of different denominations, e.g. that of the Jewish communities. She published several articles, one about the Jewish community of Tállya and their synagogue in Acta Historiae Artium 61, 1 (2020), 149–179, and coauthored (with Luca Poncellini) the comprehensive monograph on one of the most important architects of prewar Shanghai László Hudec (Budapest: Holnap, 2010).

ANITA FIKET is a research and teaching assistant at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences, the Chair of Jewish and Holocaust Studies at the University of Zagreb. She earned her MA degree in Judaic Studies, Swedish Studies and Geography at the University of Zagreb, where she is currently a third-year PhD candidate in the doctoral studies program in Geography ‘Space, Region, Environment, and Landscape’, writing her dissertation on Jewish heritage tourism in Croatia. She worked as a field researcher at Jewish cemeteries in Croatia in the European Jewish Cemeteries Initiative (ESJF) project in 2021. Her scientific interests include tourism and heritage geography, dissonant heritage, Jewish heritage tourism, culture and the history of Jews in Croatia. She published works on Jewish heritage tourism and Jewish cemeteries.

RUTH ELLEN GRUBER has worked on Jewish heritage issues for more than 35 years. She is the coordinator of the website Jewish Heritage Europe, a project of the Rothschild Foundation Hanadiv Europe. She authored numerous articles and several books, including Virtually Jewish: Reinventing Jewish Culture in Europe (2002) and Jewish Heritage Travel: A Guide to Eastern Europe (1992/2007). Among her latest publications is '(Candle)sticks on Stone: The Representation of Women in Jewish Tombstone Art', Jewish Folklore and Ethnology 2 (Fall 2023), 141–164. Her awards and honors include a Guggenheim Fellowship and Poland's Knight's Cross of the Order of Merit.

SAMUEL D. GRUBER, PhD, is an internationally recognized expert on Jewish art, architecture and the historic preservation of Jewish sites and monuments. He directs Gruber Heritage Global, a cultural resource-consulting firm, and is president of the International Survey of Jewish Monuments. Since 2021, he is a planner and lead researcher on the Holocaust Memorial Monument Database project based at the Center for Jewish Art at Hebrew University that is supported by the Claims Conference. He authored American Synagogues: A Century of Architecture and Jewish Community (New York: Rizzoli, 2003) and Synagogues (New York: Metro Books, 1999), as well as scores of published reports and articles.

RENATA HANYNETS is a PhD student at the Chair of Monument Studies at European University Viadrina Frankfurt (Oder) and currently a research fellow at the Center for Belarus and Regional Studies (European Humanities University), having earned an MA degree in Cultural Heritage Development from the European Humanities University in Vilnius and an MA in Culturology from the Lviv National Academy of Arts. She is a graduate of the Polish Government Young Scholars Program and of a One-Year Jewish Studies Program at Paideia – the European Institute of Jewish Studies in Sweden and also a member of the European Association for Jewish Studies. Her scientific interests are cultural heritage studies, Jewish heritage in Eastern and Central Europe, Holocaust remembrance and policies of memory.

MELINDA HARLOV-CSORTÁN, PhD, is an assistant college professor at Apor Vilmos Catholic College and a member of the Hungarian ICOMOS (International Council on Monuments and Sites). Her research focuses on the culturalization, heritagization and memorialization of the recent past and of minorities, both through the investigation of urban representation and personal encounters, such as ‘Religious heritage as the representation of a city. The case study of Pécs, Hungary’, EdA: Esempi di Architettura 10/1 (2023), 207–212, or ‘The role of small religious landmarks today and tomorrow’, in Olimpia Niglio, ed., Regenerating Cultural Religious Heritage: Intercultural Dialogue on Places of Religion and Rituals (Singapore: Springer Natures, 2022), 277–288.

CHRISTHARDT HENSCHER, PhD, is a research associate at the German Historical Institute Warsaw, where he is currently engaged in the German Research Foundation (DFG) project ‘Appropriation and Revitalization: Negotiation Processes of the German-Jewish Cultural Heritage in Poland’, which is a part of the DFG Priority Program 2357 on ‘Jewish Cultural Heritage’. He studied Medieval and Modern History, Musicology as well as East and Southeast European Studies at the University of Leipzig and later worked as a research assistant at the Leibniz Institute for Jewish History and Culture – Simon Dubnow in Leipzig. Among other publications, he edited Ostpreußens Kriegsbeute: Der Regierungsbezirk Zichenau 1939–1945 (Osnabrück: fibre, 2021).

ANNA KLIMOVICH, a former medical oncologist, is now an independent researcher of Jewish culture and heritage. Since 2015, she has coordinated the Beshenkovichi Memorial Shtetl Restoration project and conducted research on the history of shtetl Beshenkovichi. She holds an MA degree in Cultural Heritage Development from the European Humanities University in Vilnius.

ULRICH KNUFINKE, PhD, is a lecturer at the Technical University of Braunschweig and the scientific director of Bet Tfila – Research Unit for Jewish Architecture. At the Lower Saxony State Office for Monument Preservation, he heads the Department for the Inventory of Architectural Monuments. His research interests are Jewish architecture and the history and theory of monument preservation. He is a member of the board of the German Research Foundation (DFG) Priority Program ‘Jewish Cultural Heritage’. Together with Ruth Leiserowitz, he leads the DFG project ‘Appropriation and Revitalization: Negotiation Processes of the German-Jewish Cultural Heritage in Poland’, which is a part of the DFG Priority Program 2357 ‘Jewish Cultural Heritage’.

EUGENY KOTLYAR, PhD, is Professor at the Department of Monumental Painting of the Kharkiv State Academy of Design and Arts and the head of the Academic Board of the Ukrainian Association for Jewish Studies. His main fields of research are Jewish art and heritage in Ukraine, synagogue decorations and the local Kharkiv Jewish lore. He participated in the restoration of synagogues and Jewish community centers in Ukraine as a designer and stained-glass windows artist; he also curated art and educational exhibitions, in particular on Jewish art and created exhibitions at several Jewish museums in Kharkiv. He authored about 200 essays. His last publication, coauthored with Magda Teter, is The Light of the Revival: Stained Glass Design for the Restituted Synagogues of Ukraine by Eugeny Kotlyar (New York: The Center for Jewish Studies at Fordham University, 2024). In 2022, he won the Narkiss Prize for Excellence in the Research of Jewish Arts.

ALENA KUZMIANKOVA is an independent researcher dedicated to the dynamic field of heritage economy. Having earned an MA degree in Cultural Heritage Development from the European Humanities University in Vilnius, she uses her expertise in economics and finance to find innovative strategies at the convergence of culture and sustainability.

RUTH LEISEROWITZ, PhD, is Deputy Director at the German Historical Institute in Warsaw and Professor for East European History at the Humboldt University of Berlin. Her research interests include European history in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, focusing on transnational, Baltic and Jewish history. Together with Ulrich Knufinke, she leads the German Research Foundation (DFG) project 'Appropriation and Revitalization: Negotiation Processes of the German-Jewish Cultural Heritage in Poland'. This project is a part of the DFG Priority Program 2357 'Jewish Cultural Heritage'.

KAMILA LENARTOWICZ (previously Storz), PhD, studied Art History at the University of Wrocław, Poland, and completed her doctoral studies at the Karlsruhe Institute of Technology in Germany, where she also worked as a research assistant at the Institute of Architectural History. Her writings are devoted to the architectural history of former East Prussia. At Bet Tfila – Research Unit for Jewish Architecture in Europe at the Technical University of Braunschweig in Germany, she is engaged in the project on synagogue buildings in East Prussia, too.

NEELE MENTER, a PhD candidate, studied Architecture (BSc degree) at Berlin University of Applied Sciences and Technology (BHT) and Building Archeology and Heritage Conservation (MSc degree) at the Technical University of Berlin. She is a research assistant at Bet Tfila – Research Unit for Jewish Architecture in Europe at the Technical University of Braunschweig, where she works on the theory and practice of comparative international heritage conservation using the examples of former synagogues in Poland, France and Germany.

KINGA MIGALSKA, PhD, is a historian and art historian, graduated from the Jagiellonian University in Kraków. Her research interest focuses on the fate of Jewish material heritage in postwar Poland, and her doctoral thesis deals with the topic of the history and development of Judaica museums in Poland under the Communist regime. She is a researcher at the Department of Graphics and Drawings at the National Museum in Kraków and the author of several scientific and popular science articles.

ALEKSANDRA PARADOWSKA, PhD, is an adjunct professor in the Department of Art History and Philosophy at Magdalena Abakanowicz University of Fine Arts in Poznań, Poland. Her research focuses on the architectural history of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries and, in recent years, especially on Nazi architecture on Polish lands during World War II. She published widely on interwar Polish architecture, including hospital architecture and villas, and she authored numerous articles and edited a conference volume on German architecture in occupied Poland.

ARNO PAŘÍK holds a PhD degree in Art History and Aesthetics from Charles University, Prague. Since 1994, he has been in charge of heritage supervision for the Zecher Foundation for the Rescue of Jewish Monuments and for the Federation of Jewish Communities in the Czech Republic. He was a longtime collection curator at the Jewish Museum in Prague and a member of the editorial board of the journal Judaica Bohemiae. His main interests include the history of Prague's Jewish quarter, synagogue architecture, Jewish monuments in Bohemia and Moravia, Jewish art of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, the history of the Jewish Museum and museology. He participated in the preparation of many international traveling exhibitions on Jewish cultural heritage, which were presented in Israel, Europe, Australia and New Zealand. He authored, for instance: Baroque Synagogues in the Czech Lands (Praha: JMP, 2011) and Symbols of Emancipation: 19th-Century Synagogues in the Czech Lands (Praha: JMP, 2013).

OLGA PAVLOVA-SOKOLOVA is an independent researcher, who earned an MA degree in Social Psychology from the Belarusian State University in Minsk as well as an MA degree in European Cultural Heritage Development from the European Humanities University in Vilnius. Her key academic interests include Jewish cultural heritage in Belarus after the Holocaust, Jewish/non-Jewish relations in Belarus, Lithuania and Poland after 1945 and ‘thin culture’ of Belorussian Soviet Jews.

PIOTR PUCHTA is a former Polish diplomat and activist who led the Polish delegation to the International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance (IHRA) in 2014–2016. Since March 2019, after retiring from the diplomatic service, he has been Director of the Foundation for the Preservation of Jewish Heritage in Poland (FODŻ). The Foundation’s primary mission is to protect and commemorate surviving tangible heritage sites, including cemeteries and synagogues, as well as other objects of Jewish cultural heritage.

VALERIA RAINOLDI earned a PhD degree in European Cultures, Environment, Contexts, Histories, Arts and Ideas from the University of Trento (Italy). She is an independent researcher and a member of the editorial committee of the peer-reviewed online series Studi Veronesi, devoted to the history of Verona and its territory, and what is more, she is a member of the Board of Directors of the Foundation for the Jewish Cultural Heritage in Italy (Fondazione per i Beni Culturali Ebraici in Italia). Her recent book Il Ghetto di Verona e la sua sinagoga (Verona: Cierre, 2020) focuses on the protection, demolition and reconstruction of the Jewish ghetto in Verona.

ZUZANNA ŚWIATOWY is an architect and a Hebraist, graduated from Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań in Hebrew Philology and from Poznań University of Technology in Architecture. She is a PhD candidate at Bet Tfila – Research Unit for Jewish Architecture in Europe at the Technical University of Braunschweig, where she currently works in the German Research Foundation (DFG) project ‘Appropriation and Revitalization: Negotiation Processes of the German-Jewish Cultural Heritage in Poland’. This project is a part of the DFG Priority Program 2357 on ‘Jewish Cultural Heritage’. Her main scientific interest as well as the topic of her doctoral thesis research is the architecture of the synagogues in the region of Greater Poland.

MONIKA ŽASYTIENĖ studied Communication and Information at Vilnius University and is a curator of the Švėkšna exposition at the Hugo Scheu Museum in Šilutė. In 2021, she qualified as a tour guide at Klaipėda State College. In 2015, the Lithuanian Jewish (Litvak) Community granted her the Jewish Tolerance Award for the historic fostering of memory and preservation of the heritage of national minorities. Her book Švėkšnos žydų bendruomenė XVII–XX a. [The Jewish Community of Švėkšna in XVII–XX centuries] (Klaipėda: Druka, 2018) is the first publication that presents the surviving heritage of the Jewish community of Švėkšna before World War II.